BITCOIN:
A SHORT INTRODUCTION
Corporate Traveller Accepts Bitcoin

By Adam Perrotta / April 16, 2019 / Contact Reporter

U.K.-based Corporate Traveller has partnered with blockchain payment provider BitPay, enabling the travel management company's clients to pay for business travel bookings with bitcoin and bitcoin cash, a variation designed for smaller, faster payments. A division of Flight Centre Travel Group, Corporate Traveller serves small and midsize enterprises in the U.K., where the TMC has 20 locations. General manager Andy Hegley said existing clients drove demand for bitcoin payment. "We believe Corporate Traveller is the first business travel management company to offer this payment option to SMEs in the U.K.,” he added.

Travel Payments, problems solved
No Chargebacks

Bitcoin is a push payment: No Chargebacks.

Even bank wires can get recalled.

Settlement T+1 with no exposure to crypto price fluctuation.
No Rolling Reserve. Delayed Credit Risk mitigated

Bitcoin payments is without a rolling reserve so travel industry gets full cash flow.

Credit risk for acquiring bank/insurers not required in event of liquidation.
Opportunities

- Long haul carrier, selling tickets between emerging Crypto hubs internationally.
- Blockchain payments integration with frequent flyer schemes to sell “air miles”.
- Grab, Uber, Lyft.
